Seasons in the U.S.A.

There are four seasons in the United States. They are winter, spring, summer and autumn.

It is cold in winter. When the thermometer reads 32 degrees Fahrenheit or 0 degree Celcius, water turns into ice. We say it is freezing. Water freezes when it is cold enough. When snow falls from the sky, we say it is snowing. It snows in winter. Boys and girls like to play in the snow, throwing snowballs and making snowmen.

In spring it is not so cold. Some days are warm and flowers begin to grow. On many days it rains and then we say the weather is bad.

In summer the sun shines and the weather is hot. Children go to the beach on summer vacation. Schools are closed during the summer.
